Disclosure of Proprietary Interest Policy

Policy: AIR Ambassadors Instructors who are contracted with AIR are compensated for their time upon successful completion of the course as described in that specific learning event's contract.

Purpose: Only AIR has proprietary interests, unless such interest is negotiated with the AA. In this case, the AA and AIR will come to an agreement on the proprietary status of training materials and assurances that they conform to the IACET standards for course requirements.

Responsibilities: The learning event administrator and Safety Resource's President/CEO will oversee that any additional proprietary interests created will be updated in this policy.

Process: During the annual review process, the above mentioned responsible party will evaluate if there has been any additionally developed proprietary interest in any product, instrument, device, service or material discussed, as well as the source of any compensation related to the presentation.
